TIMELESS VIETNAM BY CẢNH TẰNG

The photographer surprises us with vibrant images of an ancient culture, essentially undiminished by strife or modernism. The images dance as if in motion, not so much stopping time as stretching it before our eyes. A world of intention beats in pictures of a fishnet flung against the wind, a mallet about to strike wood or a lone cyclist balancing dozens of baskets.

The photographer's 21st-century lens sometimes echoes the lyrics of Vietnamese folk verse and the words of poets long gone. Timeless VietNam presents a bit of this poetry, too. This collection will stand out in a marketplace dominated by books on wartime Vietnam.

Cảnh Tằng was born in the province of Hué in 1959 where he lives still.

COOKIES FOR GROWN-UPS BY KELLY COOPER PHOTOS BY FRANK ANZALONE

This is the ultimate cookbook for men and women who like cookies, and for the people who love friends and family enough to bake cookies for them.

A grown-up cookie may be sweet or savory; it may beckon childhood memories but with a touch of sumptuous sophistication. Some adult cookies go well with a cup of tea, coffee or chocolate. Others are a match for wine, beer or a cocktail.

All are for such adult occasions as Living Well Is the Best Revenge; Game Time; Baby, It's Cold Outside; Guys Night In; Ladies at Lunch or Seduction.

The author, who has mixed and tested novel, yummy flavor combos for years, has developed hundreds of new cookies. These are her best. But she also tells novice bakers how to go about creating their own unique cookies.

Kelly Cooper splits her time between Nevada and California where she is a celebrated cook, baker and hostess. She also teaches digital media.

Food photographer Frank Anzalone is a consultant to Sur la Table. He plays keyboard in the San Francisco band, Sage.

A CHRISTMAS DINNER BY CHARLES DICKENS

"Would that Christmas lasted a whole year as it ought."

So wrote Charles Dickens in this, his first Christmas story. In 1835, he had the novel idea that Christmas should be a family celebration, including forgiveness, fun, gifts and feasting. The book includes menus and Dickens-family recipes adapted by the well-known food writer Alice Ross. The story is introduced by esteemed Dickens biographer Peter Ackroyd, chief literary critic of The Times of London.

"A gift to everyone who enjoys the magic of Christmas."

—Andrew F. Smith, Oxford Companion to Food and Drink

This chronicle of the kitchen garden tracks it from dream-time to real time. We follow the sowing and reaping of the garden's fruits and vegetables along with Michelle Obama's ideas for getting kids to eat right. This beautifully-written and photographed chronicle offers a fitting four score and seven recipes. The recipes come from the Obama White House and earlier presidential households. Community gardens across America also contributed kid-approved recipes!

A White House Garden Cookbook has plenty of dirt on Michelle Obama — and the 55 fruits, veggies and herbs she's grown at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

CELEBRATION SANTA COMES TO TOWN

BY AGATHA E. GILMORE

Before he was round, Santa was slim. He has been seen as a saint, and as a gift-giver with a dangerous traveling companion named Black Pete. Santa has been painted trudging through the snow, on a donkey, or doing his best on Nordic skis. The pictorial evidence on old Christmas cards of Santa's complicated past is intelligently interpreted here by a New York journalist with a fine sense of whimsy.

CELEBRATION THE CHRISTMAS ANIMAL BOOK

BY CLINT VIEBROCK

On antique Christmas cards, the holiday commemorating the birth of Mary's son was celebrated by a diverse group of God's creatures. Small furred animals of the wood watched holiday preparations, while birds of many a feather delivered seasonal wishes. No merrier menagerie ever filled the pages of a stocking-stuffer.

Clint Viebrock lives in Telluride, Colorado.

CELEBRATION THE CHRISTMAS FLOWER BOOK

BY NINA PINSKY

Many early Christmas cards had botanical themes with petals of meanings. Mistletoe had been noted by the ancient Celts. Poinsettia, a New World bloom, came only late to be associated with Christmas. A rose was not just a rose to the Victorians, who spoke a floral dialect on holiday cards. Manhattan terrace gardener, Nina Pinsky interprets the hidden meaning of flowers in this treasury.

The Gift of Wonder

THE AMAZING MENORAH OF MAZELTOWN

BY HAL DRESNER & JOY FATE · ILLUSTRATIONS BY NEIL SHAPIRO

Mazeltown, in the Cry-Me-a-River valley, was a dreary village on the dark, cold days leading up to Hanukkah.

Then Molly and Max stumbled on a most curious object in their father's junkshop. It was old and grimy, but after they polished it a most amazing menorah emerged, a menorah that, night by night, changed Mazeltown: brightening the streets, lofting the bagels, making the river glow with life and lighting up everyone's heart.

WHAT SEA CREATURE IS THIS?

BY NANCY KELLY ALLEN ILLUSTRATIONS BY GLORIA BROWN

The sea is full of fish with fangs, fish that seem to fly and one that devises a sleeping bag for its naps. Some sea creatures have no heads. Not only are there more fish than can be dreamed of, more than fish live in the sea.

The book's charm and humor open up children's eyes and imaginations to the animals they may spot at the beach, in a sea park, aquarium, puddle or small tank.

Author Nancy Kelly Allen represents Kentucky at the National Book Festival. Painter Gloria Brown finds her head in the clouds near her high-country Colorado home.

Sin Series

There's something to celebrate about each of the Seven Deadly Sins, and the Sin Series does just that. Each book collects a mélange of quotations, legends, myths and art tracing the history of one of the Big Ones.

"Copiously illustrated, the Sin Series books are a welcome addition to any library." —RUMINATOR REVIEW

"Lively romps, brimming with colorful art, these attractive books make excellent gifts." —BLOOMSBURY REVIEW
